What do the Smart Metering Analytics, Water Conservation

Portal, Water Information Hub (WIH) and Non Revenue Water (NRW) all have in common?

- A. They are Intelligent Water reusable assets available through the Industry Solutions Asset Library
- B. They are information on premise solutions for Intelligent Water
- C. They are special promotions being extended by water management companies to help monitor water usage
- D. They are titles of books documenting Intelligent Water usage to drive awareness and encourage adoption

Answer: A

Explanation:

* WIH The WIH provides us with two main technological capabilities. The first is the ability to bring together water related data from many different sources and present a single view of the water network. The second is a more advanced concept that allows us to add advance analytics, such as leak detection to this view and enhances our overall understanding of the water network.
