NEW QUESTION: 2

How does an FCoE end node acquire its FCoE MAC address?

- A. FIP proxy
- B. fabric-provided MAC address
- C. Fibre Channel name server
- D. server-provided MAC address

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

The VN_Port is assigned a fabric-provided Mac address (FPMA) that is built by concatenating a 24-bit FCoE MAC address prefix (FC-MAP), ranging from 0x0E-FC-00 to 0x0E-FC-FF, to the 24-bit FCID. Being able to build a unique MAC address for the VN_Port directly from its FCID saves the switch from having to maintain a table that associates FCID and MAC addresses.

NEW QUESTION: 3

A corporation is designing a wireless network that must provide VoWLAN services on the 5 GHz band. They plan to use their existing Cisco 5520 WLC, AIR-CAP3702I-A-K9 Aps, and Cisco 8821 wireless IP phones which, based on the phone specifications, have a maximum transmit power of 14 dBm. The network engineer performed a site survey with an AIR-CAP3702I-A-K9 AP operating at a 100 mW on the 5 GHz band, and using UNII-I channels only for cell planning. His survey report identified that they have sufficient coverage on the site, and overlap between cells was 15-20%. However, after deployment, users report that sometimes they have one-way audio problems while moving around the floor. Which is the root cause of the problem?

- A. During the survey phase, the network engineer had to configure the survey AP to operate at 25 mW to ensure proper coverage.
- B. Cell overlap is not sufficient for seamless roaming, and that leads to the problem with phone conversations when users are walking around the site while on a call.

C. This problem happens because DFS channels were used for planning.

D. This problem happens due to co-channel interference (CCI) because only four channels were used for cells planning.
